

The Federal Communications Commission
445 12th Street, SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear The Federal Communications Commission,

I do not mind paying more for my telephone service if it means getting people to stop using cell phones while they are driving. Driving is the most dangerous activity most of us take part in on a daily basis and to be talking on the phone at the same time is irresponsible. Any fees or taxes that you can add to cell phone use in order to discourage this behavior sounds good to me.

Sincerely,

Peter Blanchard
6814 Chelsea St.
Madison, Wisconsin 53719-1901